VISITED LOCAL PARISH.

Mother General of Sisters of Notre Dame Spends Day Here.

Sister Innocentia of Munich, Germany, mother general of the order of Sisters of Notre Dame, spent Friday in the city as the guest of the Sisters of St. Peter and Paul's parish. She was accompanied by Sister Sanctina, also of Munich. They arrived in this country on Sept. 21 and will visit every house in the United States and Canada controlled by this order before their return. They do not expect to complete their pilgrimage until May.

The Order of Notre Dame originated in a small town near Munich in 1833 and sent its first representatives to this country in 1847. The order devotes its entire attention to education. It now embraces about 6,000 sisters, of whom 8,000 are working in America. They are giving instruction to about 172,000 children in all and of these about 90,000 are in America. The order has many institutions in the various German provinces, Hungary, Austria, England and the New England, middle and western states and Canada. There are three general provinces in this country with headquarters in Milwaukee, St. Louis and Baltimore.

About six years ago Sister Hermann, then mother general, made a similar tour of this country. She passed away soon after her return to the mother house and sister Innocentia is her successor. Sister Sanctina, who was here also accompanied Sister Hermann on her visit. Another sister who came on the previous tour is now superior in one of the houses in London. The mother general speaks German and French, while her companion can converse in English.

Death of Frank Haman.

Death has called from our circle a kind father and husband. Deceased was a constant sufferer from kidney and stomach troubles for nearly six months, until death released him Nov. 16. He suffered patiently and was conscious until the last, realizing that death was near at hand, well prepared to meet his Father in Heaven. His children were all at his bedside except George who arrived after his death.

Frank Haman was born in Hattelsheim, Germany, Feb. 8, 1835, being one of a family of 12 children. At the age of 20 years he left Germany for America coming to Ohio, where he remained one year. After leaving Ohio he came to Wood county where he has since resided for 48 years. He and his brother Henry ran the river until he enlisted in the army at the outbreak of the civil war. He was mustered into service Oct. 14, 1861 at Camp Sigel, Milwaukee, Wis., taken prisoner at Newtonia, Mo., and held for six weeks. At the close of the war he was honorably discharged. He was married August 30, 1865 to Katharine Palm at St. Mary's church, Milwaukee. They removed to Grand Rapids, Wis., where he was employed in his brother John's store also running the river. In 1879 he removed to Rudolph on a farm where he spent the remainder of his life. Eight children were born to bless their union, all of whom survive him. They are Frank, John, Albert, George, William, Katie of Rudolph, Mrs. J. Holmiller of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Richard Dobs of Brookaw. Besides his wife and children he leaves two brothers Henry and Albert of Rudolph, and one sister, Mrs. Swartz, of Waukegan.

Father rest thy cares are over, Thou art free from earthly pain, Only for a short time only, We will meet in Heaven again.

The funeral occurred Saturday morning from the Catholic church in this city. Rev. B. Hugenschmidt officiating. The G. A. R. post, of which Mr. Haman was a member, attended in a body and there were a large number of friends in the cortege that followed the remains to their last resting place.

JEWS TO LOCATE HERE.

Wood County to be the Scene of a Colony of Hebrews.

For many years the Jews of the world have practically monopolized the mercantile business in the large cities, and have been great powers in the financial world. There is one branch of industry which they have rather shunned, however, and this is agriculture. Writers for many years have delighted in telling of the joys of country life, the safety of the investment when put into a farm, the sureness of returns when industriously handled and the all around independence of the agriculturist. But the Jew, in America at least, has carefully avoided farming, and the consequence is that one of this nation's following a plow would be a real curiosity.

It seems, however, that this is going to be all changed. A colony of Jews is located for Wood county, and according to newspaper reports, they will soon be on the ground. The following from the Milwaukee Free Press, tells of the plan and what it is proposed to do in the matter:

A. W. Rich, president of the Milwaukee Agricultural association, has purchased 20 acres of land in Wood county which will be settled by a colony of Jewish immigrants. The first delegation of colonists will leave Milwaukee for their new homes before Dec. 1.

The purchase of the land in central Wisconsin for the agricultural association is the realization of a plan for settling Jewish immigrants on farms, which Mr. Rich has cherished for several years. If the experiment in Wood county proves successful, hundreds of men, women and children, living in congested districts of Milwaukee will be given opportunities to locate on fertile lands.

While the experiment is being conducted, ten families will constitute the colony. These are immigrants who have come to America from Russia and Rumania during the past two years.

The land upon which the colony will be located was purchased on Monday from the Offutt & Stoddard Land company, Pittsville, Wis. The tract adjoins the village of Arpin, a town of 300 people. Three railroads tap the village. Two of the lines, the Chicago & Northwestern and the Wisconsin Central, pass within a few hundred feet of the colony. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul enters the village of Arpin, but it does not run out of the new colony's land.

"I am delighted with the location," said A. W. Rich yesterday. "The soil is fertile and productive, and the land can be cleared with little expense. The soil is a clay loam. The roads about our settlement are good. There are several vacant houses in the vicinity of the land, in which the colonists will dwell during the winter. The Wood county land is an ideal location for our new homes. There is a Seven Day Adventist colony a few miles from the land.

The movement to settle Jewish immigrants upon farm lands was started about a year ago, when Mr. Rich went to New York to discuss the matter with the New York Agricultural association. He received great encouragement there and upon his return the Milwaukee Agricultural association was organized with the following officers: A. W. Rich, president; J. M. Perles, vice-president; Nathan Glickmann, financial secretary; Louis Gubel, treasurer; Max Landauer and Morris Miller, directors.

For the past year President Rich has been examining and inspecting lands in Wisconsin and Michigan. The location in Wood county was decided to be the most desirable.

From the start the farm work will be under the supervision of an experienced farmer who understands the climatic conditions in Wisconsin. H. F. Roehrig, Appleton, has been employed to supervise the work and to aid the settlers.

Little of the land will be sold outright to the settlers the first year or two. While each individual will work his farm the community method will be operated to a degree.

The plan for settlement is as follows:

If any settler possesses $250 or over and prefers to make a purchase of forty acres of land outright and manage his affairs independently, he can do so. He will be given a land contract until at least one-half of his indebtedness to the association will be paid with interest at 6 per cent. When this amount is paid he will receive a deed of the property under mortgage.

Settlers who have not sufficient means to secure a land contract on the property upon which they locate, will be employed by the association to work the farm lands at a stated weekly salary for one year as a period of probation. If the settler then desires to become a purchaser of the property upon which he lived, an account will be made of the amount of wages or other money advanced to him. This will be subtracted from the amount realized by the association from his work and if there is a balance it will be credited on the purchase price of the property or on any loan advanced by the association.

The plan of the Milwaukee Agricultural association is new. In the east individual families have been settled upon farms, but no attempt has been made to locate a colony.

Hunters Arrested.

Antigo News Item.—Deputy Game Warden M. G. Rohrbach, and Herman Vallentyne, of Milwaukee, arrested four hunters by the names of Fred Fischer, Robert Quick, Louis Huber and H. G. Schwager, all on Antigo, near Summit Lake, Tuesday, on the charge of running deer with dogs. Their guns, four deer and three dogs were confiscated and brought to this city Wednesday, where they were arranged before Judge Martin, and the case continued until Friday. Two of the dogs were gotten away from the game warden by stealth. The deer were placed in B. Berglin's refrigerator and some time during the night parties broke in the back door and removed the deer, but no clue has been found to indicate who stole them. The parties arrested deny that they were violating the law.

LATER.—Just as we go to press we learn that the case was decided in favor of the defendants, and are informed that the parties will commence suit against the deputy game warden for damages.

Remarkable Weather.

It is doubtful if the oldest inhabitant can recall a more remarkable stretch of weather than we have experienced since the first of November. With the exception of one day, Wednesday, the 9th, every day has been warm and sunny.

The local weather prophets have all been fooled. When it clouds up in the month of November in this section, after several pleasant days, it is pretty safe to take a squint at the sky, look about the horizon, and predict that there is going to be a change in the weather. Every man has established quite a reputation, in his own estimation, by following this method, but the past twenty-two days have fooled the best of them. They have predicted and prognosticated, but the sun has continued to shine. It is too bad to see the old settlers fooled in this manner, but the nice weather has been very acceptable just the same.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest quality of granulated loaf sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Roderick, of Polesville, Md., in speaking of this remedy, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with my children for several years and can truthfully say it is the best preparation of the kind I know of. The children like to take it, and it has no injurious aftereffect. Otto's Pharmacy."

HUNTERS RETURN.

Many Deer Brought to the City from Northern Part of State.

Many of the deer hunters who went to the woods in the northern part of the state have returned home, and the number of deer that have been received at the local express office bear witness to the fact that there must have been something doing up in the woods.

One party that went to Harshaw brought back 12 deer with them, they being eight in the bunch. They report very good shooting, and consider that several in the party were strictly novices, they did very well. This party consisted of L. M. Noth, G. W. Mason, Frank Bolos, W. H. Carey, Hugh Bolos, Charles Bolos, Emil Rosser, D. D. Conway, W. J. Conway, and Will Nash, who only spent the last few days at the camp. They report a very pleasant outing and are highly pleased with their trip. They were also accompanied by Joe Akey, who acted in the capacity of cook.

Another party hunting near Harshaw consisted of Gus Snyder, H. A. Sampson Sr., Clark Snyder, Julius Gash, Tony Holmeyer, H. A. Sampson Jr., and Ted Johnson. H. A. Sampson Sr., Julius Gash and Ted Johnson returned Monday night and they report that their crowd secured ten deer. Also had a good time, but found the traveling pretty hard up in that locality.

Jose Hogwood, James Mason, Louis Schull, Sam Martin and William Lill are also hunting in that locality and at last reports they had secured six deer, not having met with quite as good luck as some of their neighbors.

The unusually warm weather this fall has made it a difficult matter to keep venison for any length of time and as a consequence many of the hunters have treated their neighbors to liberal chunks of deer meat.

RURAL CARRIERS.

Must Make Their Trips Within Seven Hours.

An order has gone into effect limiting the time to seven hours in which rural mail carriers can make their deliveries en route of 25 miles. Heretofore the time had been eight hours. Except when the roads are in bad condition it is thought that the seven-hour limit is sufficient to enable them to complete the circuit provided they have good horses. If the animals now in use cannot make the time it will be necessary to purchase faster steeds. In case of bad roads, such as experienced in winter, the excess will be sufficient to allow more time. The order will in no way affect the pay of the carriers. A communication was also received from the fourth assistant postmaster to the effect that mail order houses were offering rural carriers a commission for soliciting orders for catalogues, the same to be shipped by freight to the carriers and afterwards delivered by them. It further states that the new law which states that "carriers shall not solicit business or receive orders of any kind for any person, firm or corporation" covers this point and any carrier found soliciting for catalogues will be discharged. They can only carry matter outside of the mail for and upon request of patrons residing on their respective routes. While a carrier cannot deliver catalogues which have not come through the mails they are allowed to deliver a bag of flour or a horse if one of his patrons requests him to do so.

Be it Further Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our past records, and also that they be published in the city newspaper and a copy thereof be presented to the family.

PREDICTS UNION OF ANGLO-SAXONS

English Statesman Says Great Britain and United States Will Lead.

FOR PROGRESS OF THE WORLD

Expects the Two Great Nations to Join Hands for the Advancement of Civilization of Mankind—Election Impresses.

New York dispatch: John Morley, the English statesman, was one of the speakers at the annual dinner of the New York chamber of commerce. He declared he was as enthusiastic as any one in Chicago on the night of the election when he made a tour of the voting booths and visited the newspaper offices to see how the returns were handled. He predicted that in all great emergencies the United States and Great Britain would be found fighting side by side.

"I confess I greatly impressed my imagination," said Mr. Morley, "and stirred me to think that in this vast country within a few hours the voice of the people, right or wrong, would be so emphatically and so unmistakably ascertained."

"Frankly, I rejoice to hear from the secretary of the treasury that your hopes are buoyant, and that you are prosperous. Why, that is a thing that strikes me most in my rapid transit through important trade centers in this country—the enormous and unbounded strength of your material resources—and, being a good natured person, let me say that I have seen nothing—don't hoot me out of the room—I have seen nothing, no evidence during this run through some of the centers of your country, to make me believe you would not have been just as great, just as mighty—I mean in industrial competition—just as prosperous, just as strong as you are to-day, if you had taken that worn out shillibolee, as I am told, 'no tariff excepting for purposes of revenue.'"

Treads on Delicate Ground.

"Well, if that is all the tendency that comes of testifying I do not think I need have taken the trouble to have testified, because I gather that a good many of you at all events have some doubts as to the matter. And now, this is the last remark I will make upon that delicate ground, which is less delicate than I thought it would be. (Cheers) though it may be that I am so stupid or so stubborn or so much of a doctrinaire—a name I am well acquainted with—as to doubt whether you would not have been just as well off if you had taken that formula."

Towards the end of the address Mr. Morley said:

"It would be most unbecoming of me to say a word as to the personality of any president, if I will say it in passing that it is gratifying to me to find that a man may write a book about Oliver Cromwell and yet be thought a good man to whom to trust the destinies of a nation."

"I rejoice to think, and I do think, that in the great questions and emergencies that may arise great Britain and the United States will both be interested by sentiment be found side by side."

Will Fight Side by Side.

"I believe from the bottom of my heart that for the progress of the world, for the civilization of mankind, we will fight side by side for those ideals and those questions which are common to us and common to you."

Mr. Morley's speech was received with great enthusiasm. It was over ten minutes before the applause subsided.

The other speakers of the evening were Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury; Richard Olney and Sir James Kitson, M. P. Morris K. Jesup presided.

Secretary Shaw in his address said money is plenty, crops abundant and prices good, and on this account warned the business world against either "reckless optimism" or "timid pessimism." He hoped the country would be saved from either extreme.

Mr. Olney said the basis of all true civilization is the confidence of the parties in each other's honesty of purpose.

GEN. JOHN C. BLACK TO BE PENSION CHIEF

Former Democratic Commissioner Is to Be Restored to His Position by Order of Roosevelt.

Washington dispatch: Gen. John C. Black of Chicago is President Roosevelt's choice for pension commissioner. It is said Gen. Black has accepted the post and will take charge of the office at the beginning of the year.

The appointment comes as a surprise. Gen. Black is a Democrat, was talked of as his party's nominee for the vice presidency, twice has held positions under a Democratic administration and had not been taken into consideration by the political wiseacres.

Gen. Black is thoroughly familiar with the office. Under President Cleveland's first administration he was pension commissioner, and he brings to his work the experience gained then.

The president's nonpartisan selection will be especially welcomed by the Grand Army of the Republic, of which Gen. Black has been commander-in-chief.

Under President Cleveland's second administration Gen. Black was United States district attorney for northern Illinois and he has served as congressional manager from that state. He is a past commander of the Order of the Royal Legion of Illinois and a past department commander of the Illinois department, G. A. R.

The new pension commissioner has a brilliant war record. In the civil war he rose from the ranks to a colonelcy, being promoted a brigadier general. He marched 6,000 miles with his regiment, the Thirty-second Illinois, led it in sixteen battles, traveled 10,000 miles with it other than by marches, and weathered two sieges with his men.

CHARRED BODY OF MAN IN SMOLDERING RUINS

Murder Mystery Is Suggested by Finding of Corpse of Aged Recluse in Indiana Clearing.

South Bend, Ind., dispatch: The finding of the body of John R. Perkins in a strip of lovely woods one mile south of Granger and the peculiar circumstances surrounding his death suggest a murder mystery. The remains were discovered under the charred remains of a shanty and were in a horrible condition, the top of the head being crushed in and the body burned almost to a crisp. When the coroner reached the clearing where the body was found, he found a shanty, once stood the shanty nothing remained except the smoldering timber, in the center of which lay the body, the head thrown back and the arms extended. The supposed murdered man was 60 years old. Several years ago he lived in South Bend and at that time it is known that he had considerable money. Those who held to the murder theory think Perkins was attacked during the night and that he was killed before he could defend himself. Then, to conceal the crime, the body was put in the shanty and a fire started.

Overwork Killing Us

In the Great Struggle for Wealth and Position We Are Becoming Weaker Than Our Forefathers.

By the cares of business and social life we use up or waste away the most vital elements of the human body before we realize our weak and run down condition. It seizes on us so quietly at first that little or no attention is paid to the symptoms, which commence with a queer, hawking cough in the head, later the drowsy commotion in the head, later the power to concentrate the thoughts, no necessary to brain workers, is lost. Following this will come deficient sight or blurred vision, muscular weakness and a dull pain in the small of the back. There is a tendency to tire easily, the digestion becomes impaired; the temper irritable; apiritia depressed, ending in complete lack of confidence and a general feeling of disgust at our own condition. When the blood and nerve forces have been wasted by disease, overwork, worry, brain-fret, high living, dissipation or other bad habits, Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food rebuilds the system by replacing the same substances that have been lost. Price 60 cents.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Once again Our Father, who art in Washington, has sent out the glad tidings that it is up to us to be thankful, and by the time this paper reaches a large share of our readers they and their respective families will be gubbling down large hunks of thankfulness and otherwise maltracting their systems and putting them in condition for an attack of bilious fever. It is dead easy for the president to issue a thanksgiving proclamation, and then to practice what he preaches. We doubt if there is a single master of the Tribune who could not muster up quite a thankful spirit. If he had just been elected to a fifty-thousand-dollar-a-year job with a house rent and kitchen expenses thrown in. There is something about the knowledge that you have a steady job for four years to come at $50,000 a year that is calculated to give the average man a satisfied and thankful feeling. Of course it is not so much the salary. The salary don't amount to anything. In fact, we have been reliably informed that it is impossible to live on the salary and deem the children decent. There was one president by the name of Hayes, a farmer by profession, who did, by penning economy and not giving his family any wine to drink, not only manage to live on the wages that he made with the job, but he also saved money on the side, but we look on him with scorn. History has branded him as a man too stingy to properly feed those dependent on him.

Just think of sitting down to the table and attempting to make a meal without any wine to drink. Isn't it enough to turn your stomach? We hope that none of our subscribers are so low down that they will deprive their wife and family of wine just for the sake of laying away a few dollars for a rainy day. We are a little bit off the subject of thankfulness, but there won't be any extra charge on that account. We are told that thankfulness comes from being contented. Consequently, in order to be thankful you must be contented. If you are contented, there is no object in striving for anything better, and if you do not strive for better things there will be no advancement. So there you are. You owe your turkey to your own choice, that is if you have money enough to buy turkey. In the absence of turkey a small slice of bacon and some boiled potatoes, garnished with yre bread and a slice or two of brick cheese, have been known to serve as an excellent substitute. If you can't get the bacon, it is hardly worth the trouble of being thankful.

So far as we know, the Americans are only ones who observe Thanksgiving day. It originated some years ago when there wasn't much of anything to be thankful for, and consequently the people were more thankful than they are at the present time. There are many different ways of observing Thanksgiving day. Some take a day off and spend the time in prayer, with an occasional square meal thrown in for good measure, and it's just having two Snuggles in a week to them. Some travel six hundred miles and spend the afternoon watching two football teams run each other's noses in the mud, and they yell themselves hoarse, and when they get home they feel as if they had bunched three weeks' work all into one day and had not any sleep for a month. They are very thankful for several days, as a general thing. Then there is a class who go out and get filled up to the muzzle with booze. The thankful stage also lasts several days with this class of citizens, as a general thing, the some of them manage to get back to work by the next morning.

Luckily, this is a glorious free country. When the president, aided and abetted by the governor, says we shall be thankful he does not stipulate what route we shall take, consequently nobody has any kick coming. We hope that every reader of this Tribune has something to be thankful for. All of our republican neighbors should be thankful because they elected their president and carried the town of Sigol in the last election. The democrats should be thankful because they were not beaten any worse than they were, and because they are allowed to live at all. The prohibitionists should be thankful because they polled 94 votes in the county. While this number is hardly sufficient to elect a president, it shows that the cause of temperance is rapidly growing and that it will not be many years before they sweep everything before them. Four years ago there were only 71 of them in the county, which is a good enough all the way along the line. Just make up your mind that you are thankful, and you are thankful whether you are or not.

New Supervisor of Assessments.

Last Friday the county board cleared a new supervisor of assessments for the coming term and they selected as such officer Peter McCamley. He having received a large majority of the votes cast. There were several other candidates for the office. There is no question but what Mr. McCamley will fill the office in an acceptable manner, and give the people good service. As to the retiring supervisor, J. W. Cochran, he has done a lot of hard work in bringing the assessment up to its present even basis, it being considerably more complex on account of his having been the first incumbent in the office.

A Fountain Pen

Would be a mighty handy thing to have in your vest pocket if the blamed thing did not leak, but the most of them leak. Still there is one kind that it is not troubled in this way, and that is Mooney's Self Filling Fountain Pen.

Whenever you have time, step into Hirzy's Jewelry store at the east end of the bridge and it will take him only a few minutes to demonstrate that the Mooney Self Filler is a wonder in the line of pens. Can be filled in one second without inkling the hands. Nothing to unscrew. Will write until the last drop is used and never flood, just the kind of a pen for a business man, or others who have been looking for a first class pen. Costs no more than the ordinary kind, and much better.

If you are contemplating on taking insurance do not forget to look up the M. B. A. as it is well worth your time and consideration.

BLACK DRAUGHT STOCK & POULTRY MEDICINE

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Theodor's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their feed. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and rosp and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.
It costs 25c. a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

PREPARED, KANS., March 25, 1904.
I have been using your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine on my stock for some time. I have used all kinds of stock and have found that yours is the best for my purpose.

In an alcove, partially formed by a bay window, stood a case, upholstered in a large pattern. The light struck the curtains in such a way that Blake did not recognize the subject until squarely in front of it.

It was a portrait of Jessie Carden—not the Jessie Carden drawn by the San Francisco artist from the faded type—but the Jessie Carden of later years, whose face and figure had taken on the perfect grace of womanhood.

Amazed and lost in thought, Blake did not hear Arthur Morris as he approached and stood back of him. He flushed when Morris turned him on the shoulder.

"You're that portrait must have great attraction for you," laughed Morris. "You've been staring at it five minutes! A box at the opera you cannot tell her name!"

"Don't!" said Blake. "That's a portrait of Miss Carden—Miss Jessie Carden, of Boston."

An expression of dumb surprise swept across the face of Arthur Morris. With half-opened mouth and staring eyes he gazed at James Blake.

"Well, I'll be— Well, of all things!" He sank into a chair and laughed feebly. "I say, old fellow, you look new off the island! How the devil did you guess that name?"

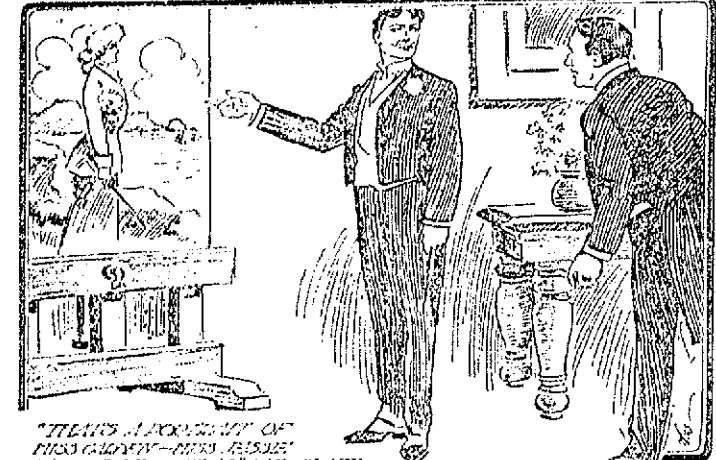

"Nothing wonderful about it," said Blake, who by this time had perfected his course. "I met Miss Carden years ago, and I at once recognized the portrait."

"You met her? Where?"

"In the country, near Hingham, Massachusetts."

"How? When? By Jove, old fellow, this beats me! What were you doing in Hingham?"

"I lived on a farm near there," replied Blake. Morris ceased forwarding him for an instant, and with possession of him. Who was this man who lived on a farm near Hingham, and who was once acquainted with Jessie Carden? Was he John Burt?

"From the time I was thirteen until I ran away from home," Blake continued, with nonchalance and confident manner, "I lived on a farm near there, three miles from the old Blake mansion. Miss Carden used to visit there in the summer seasons and I saw her frequently. The last time I saw her she came past our house with a friend of mine. That reminds me—near old John—don't look like him when I go to Berkeley Woods?" Blake threw back his head and reflectively exhaled a wreath of cigar smoke.

"Does this explain the mystery? I don't see anything wonderful about it except that you have her portrait and that is probably easily explained. I'm sorry to pry into your affairs, old man."

"Not at all—not at all! Ramonismo; branny and two bottles of soda," ordered Morris, mopping his forehead. "By Jove, this is remarkable! You speak of a friend of yours—do you call him—what was his last name?"

"Burt."

"Where is he now?" Morris leaned eagerly forward, his face agog and his lower lip twitching.

"Sure, I don't know! He was with his grandfather on the old Burt farm in Berkeley Woods when I last saw him. Why? Do you know John Burt?"

"Confound it, man, he shot me!" exclaimed Morris, springing to his feet and pacing up and down the room. "He shot me, I tell you, and all but put me out for good! And he did it on account of the girl whose portrait you're admiring. The blasted man was crazy jealous over Miss Carden, who had been so foolish as to tolerate his company. He picked a quarrel with me in a tavern and shot me through the left lung. Laid me up for three months. Then the tragedy of grandfather of his nearly killed two officers and aided him to escape. He has never been heard of since."

Blake plied Morris with questions. The latter took large draughts of brandy and retorted the successive chapters which led to the tragedy of grandfather of his nearly killed two officers and aided him to escape. He has never been heard of since."

"night," replied Blake. "From there I return to San Francisco, but expect to make New York my home."

"Is that so?" said Sam. "In New York, now?" said Sam, handing Blake his card. "Moved there several years ago. Mother and I are here on a visit for a few days. I've been doing fairly middlin' well in New York, Jim. When you write me, be shore an' put 'John' before my name, and Sam laughed until the rocks re-echoed his merriment.

"How is that?" asked Blake, gazing blankly at the card.

"Read what it says," insisted Sam. "I'm alderman of my district, an' have just been re-elected to a second term. Fact?"

"I congratulate you, Sam," said Blake heartily.

"Sorry ye haven't time tew walk over an' go back with us," Sam said. "But if ye are goin' tew locate in New York, I'll see lots of ye."

"I certainly will look you up when I'm in New York," said Blake. "My regards to your mother, and say I'm sorry I didn't have time to call on her. Are you married, Sam?"

"No, but I have hopes," laughed Sam, gathering up the lines. "Good-bye, Jim, good-bye, an' more luck tew ye!"

"Same to you, Sam; good-bye!"

Ten days later James Blake arrived in San Francisco. He drove to John's apartment and was greeted by him in the old study room. Blake sat where he looked at the portrait of Jessie Carden. His heart sank within him.

WEALTHY WOMAN LEAVES CHURCH SHE BENEFITED her mother's death inherited $500,000 more.

After graduating from a convent she and her sister, the present Baroness von Zeedwitz, went abroad to travel with their aunt.

On their return to America, Gwendolyn went to Louisville, Ky., rented an entire floor of the Galt house, and prepared to entertain in a manner suited to the people of that place. Her first public appearance was at the opening night of Mary Anderson.

After the play she entertained half of Louisville in her apartments. The newspapers the next morning printed columns of not too friendly comment on the appearance of the heiress and especially of her imported gown. It was low cut and Miss Caldwell objected to the manner in which it was described. She returned to New York the next day.

Soon after reaching her majority, Miss Caldwell, through her guardian, Bishop Spalding, of Peoria, announced to the Catholic hierarchy her intention of endowing the Catholic university, and a council was held to consider her offer.

Such a project long had been considered, but sufficient funds had never been provided. Miss Caldwell donated the eighty-eight acres on the edge of Washington, erected three of the largest buildings, including Caldwell hall, which is the largest of the present group, and provided for the maintenance of the university for three years. Her sister, the Baroness von Zeedwitz, gave Caldwell chapel to the university.

For this service Pope Leo XIII. bestowed upon Gwendolyn Caldwell a diamond-studded medal, which he had struck especially for her, and also conferred the decoration of the Order of the Rose, which distinction no other woman ever has held.

The young heiress went to Italy in 1887, and three met Prince Murat, who was thirty-three years the senior of Miss Caldwell, and deeply in debt. He was the grandson of Murat, king of Naples, and of Carolina, sister of Napoleon I.

After their engagement was announced preparations for a royal wedding were made, a tulle dress for a queen secured, and the day for the ceremony set.

The day before the marriage the prince and his legal representative and Miss Caldwell and her attorneys met to arrange the antenuptial contract. The prince insisted upon the control of the fortune. Miss Caldwell refused this. Then he offered to take half of it. This the American girl refused, saying that she had intended settling $25,000 a year upon her husband. The prince wanted more. Miss Caldwell at once broke the engagement and returned to America.

Miss Caldwell, in 1892, announced her engagement to the Marquis de Monstiers-Morville. It was said to be a love match. She was married on October 18 of that year, the ceremony being performed by Bishop Spalding. After her marriage, the marquis went to Paris to live and her entertainments were notable there. She spent much of her time in charitable labors. Her husband began to look at her strangely. Since then she has led the life of a recluse.

Gave Himself Away.

Prof. H. H. H. in psychology at Yale, while lecturing before the members of the senior class a short time ago, unconsciously "gave himself away" in this fashion: "Now, let me illustrate that point. One day a celebrated psychologist, a world-renowned man, was walking down street when I met a little girl, and said to her—"

"What the professor said was drowned in the outburst of laughter from the students.

Woman Master of Foxhounds.

Many women in the British Islands hunt their own hounds, but only one, Miss Edith Somerville, is M. F. H. (master of foxhounds when the title is borne by a man). Miss Somerville's home is in Ireland, the O'Donovan being the honorary secretary. In addition to being a noted sportswoman, she is a successful novelist, some of her books taking high rank among the humorous works of the past few years.

Gymnasium on Lines.

On the new North German Lloyd liner Prinz Eitel Friedrich, which leaves Southampton for China and Japan, is a gymnasium twenty-five feet long, twenty-one feet wide and fifteen feet high. It contains machines for rowing, swimming and cycling, machines that will exercise every muscle in the body, and two Swedish electrical health machines.

Rules for Chauffeurs.

Winthrop E. Scarritt, president of the Automobile Club of America, has been laying "down" some intelligent rules for chauffeurs. Here are some pertinent points on which he insists: First, master your machine; second, always be prepared to stop on the instant, and, third, show care and consideration for other users of the highways.

Eulogized Senator Hoar.

The Massachusetts Society of Los Angeles, Cal., has passed resolutions as a mark of respect to the memory of Senator Hoar, recognizing that by his death "the oppressed has lost a fearless defender, justice an earnest advocate, the nation an ideal statesman and true American."

Laurel in Poor Health.

Premier Laurier is again in such poor health on account of his heart that he is unable to take part in the recent political campaign that he has arranged to go to the southern states to recuperate until February, when parliament will be called.

Bounty for Coals.

The Chinese government is to receive 2,300 a thousand for all the Chinese coals shipped to South African mines.

Infant Prodigy "Made Good."

Willy Hess, leader of the Boston Symphony orchestra, began his musical studies at 6 and at 10 was an infant prodigy touring Holland.

Wreckage Worth Collecting.

Rev. William Richardson of Lewes, England, died recently, leaving a will on the margin of which he wrote: "This is all I have left. Only wreckage of an estate." As the "wreckage" amounted to something over $87,000, the estate must have been of fair proportions originally.

GIVES LESSONS IN CARVING.

Young Woman Who Teaches Men an Invaluable Art.

"There goes a woman," said the tall girl, according to the New York Press, "who is preparing to confer a blessed boon upon suffering mankind. If she succeeds in her present plans every corner in household matters will be ready within a year to canonize her as a saint."

"What is she going to do?" asked the nice young man.

"She is going to establish a carving class for prospective bridegrooms. I saw one of her circulars yesterday. She has 500 of them ready for the market, so evidently she means business. I also saw the list of possible patrons to whom she is going to send them. It is made up chiefly of young men who recently have entered or are about to enter the married state. She has a dozen pupils pledged already."

"The instruction will be thorough. Each man will be required to write individually with all kinds of meats the Thanksgiving turkey, and not until he has learned to sever joints and slice cuts gracefully will he be granted a degree. Fifty cents a lesson is the price to be charged for this invaluable information. The ultimate cost will be regulated, of course, by the ingenuity of the pupil. A man with a natural aptitude for carving will probably go through in six lessons. At that rate the education is dirt cheap, and I intend to urge every man of my acquaintance to avail himself of the opportunity to master a difficult art."

The nice young man took a note book from his waistcoat pocket. "Who do you say the lady is?" he asked, shyly.

The tall girl laughed. "Well, for goodness sake," she said, "is that what you say? I have noticed that you were acting queerly, but I didn't know that that was the cause. Who is she? When is it to be?"

SECURES A PARDON FOR "JIM."

Black "Mammy" Offers Convincing Argument to the Governor.

During the last year of Robert Taylor's incumbency of the gubernatorial chair of Tennessee an ancient black woman came in on the day the governor was to pardon her old husband, "Marsa Bob," she said, "I wish you'd pardon dat ole nigger Jim outen de pen. Deys got him down dar on he ain no good nowhar, an we needs him at home."

"Can't do it, Aunt Hannah," the governor said. "The newspapers are ranting me so many convicts, and—"

"What's he doin' for, Aunt Hannah?" the governor asked.

Science of Onychomancy.

The latest science is, undoubtedly, onychomancy, or the science of reading the fortune from the finger nails. According to the onychomancist, the tiny white specks which come and go on the nails are not the result of chance, but from them can be read "the past, present and future." These innocent looking specks are almost as difficult to decipher as the lines on the palm from which the palmist tells us so much. Their size
